

International design & architecture competition

The Portable Cabin

This document includes information to register and the necessary procedures to participate in the competition. This will conclude in an exhibition of the best works presented on the IAC's website (www.ia-competitions.com) and in various important sites of design and architecture.

The Portable Cabin symbolizes a post Covid freedom and also a changing world of people moving around the globe for geopolitical reasons. A home that functions as a carry on to explore alternate ways of living.

New habits, new reasons, and a new context demands a new type of home.

Architectural Program

The architectural program is a guide to the elements of the project, the final dimensions are up to the contestant. They are the minimum requirements, new ones can be added, and they will be valued, as long as the minimum and maximum total area is respected. The exterior expansion spaces will not be computed within this surface, galleries, stairs, and so on.

| | |
|------------------------|--------------------------|
| Minimum Sleeping Space | Single Bed |
| Minimum Kitchen Space | Oven Burner Sink |
| Minimum Bathroom Space | Shower Sink Toilet |
| Minimum Save Space | 1550m ² |
| Minimum Desktop Space | 2325m ² |

Spaces can be combined*

The cabins covered area shouldn't be less than 15 square meters or 161 square feets or more than 50 m2 (538 square feets). The maximum height of the building will be 6 meters.

Participants

The contest is aimed at the entire global community of young architects and architecture students. In case of setting up work teams, designate a member of this as the only valid representative and interlocutor before the organizers in case of obtaining any prize.

The representative will be the one who has the corresponding prize, and will not be responsibility of the organizers how they will distribute the award.

There cannot be teams of more than 5 people, including the representative.
